ABSTRACT

This report provides a summary of test results from the Texas Academic Skills Program (TASP), including alternative tests taken for TASP purposes as authorized by state law, by student race/ethnicity for academic year 1999-2000. The results are provided for each Texas public university and community or technical college and for the entire state. In 1999-2000, 220,363 TASP Tests were given to 181,173 students. This report includes only students enrolled at a Texas public college or university for the first time in 1999-2000. Of these students, 103,206 took the TASP on an initial attempt, 58,133 took an alternative test on an initial attempt, 56,067 were exempt based on other test scores, and 43,029 took the TASP on a subsequent attempt. An analysis of TASP exemptions granted to students because of high Scholastic Assessment Test, ACT Assessment of Texas Assessment of Academic Skills scores begins the report. This is followed by a description of the tests used by each institution during the academic year. The remaining tables show initial TASP Test and alternative test pass rates, as well as TASP retake pass rates, by institution and test route. Initial pass rates show that more students successfully completed the writing test (69.3%) than successfully completed the reading test (61.4%) or the mathematics test (42.0%). (Contains results for 61 tests.) (SLD)

Texas Academic Skills Program (TASP)
Summary of TASP/Alternative Test (TASP/A) Results
Academic Year 1999-2000

Center for College Readiness
Division of Participation and Success
Texas Higher Education Coordinating Board

This report provides a summary of test results from the Texas Academic Skills Program (including alternative tests taken for TASP purposes as authorized by state law) by student race/ethnicity for academic year 1999-2000. The results are provided for each Texas public university and community or technical college (CTC) and for the entire state.

National Evaluation Systems, Inc., reported that 220,363 TASP Tests were given to 181,173 students in academic year 1999-2000. This report includes only students enrolled at a Texas public college or university for the first time during academic year 1999-2000. Of those students, 103,206 took the TASP Test on an initial attempt, 58,133 took an alternative test on an initial attempt, 56,067 were exempt based upon other test scores, and 43,029 students retook the TASP Test on a subsequent attempt.

An analysis of TASP exemptions granted to students begins the report and is followed by a description of what tests were used by each institution during the academic year. The remaining tables show initial TASP Test and alternative test pass rates (as well as retake TASP Test pass rates) by institution and test route.

Exemptions

TASP exemptions based on high achievement on the Scholastic Assessment Test (SAT), ACT, or Texas Assessment of Academic Skills (TAAS) tests were allowed beginning in the fall semester 1993. For academic year 1999-2000, Texas public colleges and universities reported 56,067 exemptions, representing 25.8 percent of the 217,406 students who were included in this analysis. Students enrolled at universities received 54.9 percent of the exemptions.

The SAT accounted for 49.4 percent of the exemptions, the ACT for 17.9 percent, and the TAAS test for 32.7 percent. Exemption via the SAT was more likely at universities (65.8 percent) while the TAAS was the more likely route at CTCs (56 percent). The report includes tables that show TASP exemptions by institution by student race/ethnicity.

Alternative Tests

In 1997, the Texas Legislature authorized the use of alternative tests for TASP purposes effective fall 1998. The THECB approved four such tests: ASSET and COMPASS from ACT, and MAPS and ACCUPLACER from The College Board. ASSET and MAPS are paper/pencil exams while COMPASS and ACCUPLACER are computer-adaptive tests. Texas public colleges and universities reported 58,133 students who took an alternative test on the initial attempt and who enrolled for the first time at the institution for academic year 1999-2000.

THECB staff initially set passing standards for the alternative tests by examining test results from students who had taken both the TASP Test and an alternative test within a relatively short time period. This report provides a look at the impact of alternative test passing standards on initial testing of students who enrolled for the first time at the institution during the academic year. The data show that initial pass rates by test route differ, in some cases substantially. Such dissimilarities may result from differences in student populations tested and/or in the skills being measured by each test. The THECB has informed the testing companies about the results and will continue to monitor the pass rates. Meanwhile, any questions regarding the pass rates or the alternative tests should be directed to the THECB's Center for College Readiness at (512) 427-6330.

Initial Test Attempts

The initial testing results for all test routes taken include statewide pass rates calculated without and with exemptions, assuming that those who were exempt would have passed the TASP Test. Table A shows the statewide pass rates on initial testing for all three parts and for each test section by test route taken.

Texas public colleges and universities reported 161,339 students who took the TASP Test or an alternative test on the initial attempt and who enrolled for the first time at the institution during the academic year. The overall initial test pass rate for the 161,339 students was 31.4 percent. The lowest initial test pass rate reported was in math, followed by reading and writing.

However, an additional 56,067 students who enrolled for the first time at the institution during the academic year were exempted from TASP testing based on SAT, ACT, or TAAS scores. Table A illustrates that when TASP-exempted students are combined with the students who took an initial TASP Test or an alternative test, 49.1 percent of the 217,406 students met their TASP obligation.

TABLE A: Pass Rates (Initial and with Exemptions) by Test Route for 1999-2000

Beginning in fall 1998, state law required students to test before enrolling in any collegiate course work. Therefore, the pass rates on the initial attempt reflect the extent to which these students were prepared for college-level work upon entry into higher education, as measured by the TASP Test and the alternative tests. Table B shows the initial test pass rates by student race/ethnicity for all test routes taken.

TABLE B: Pass Rates (Initial and with Exemptions) by Race/Ethnicity for 1999-2000

Race/Ethnicity	Total	Ethnic Distribution	Pass Rates
			All 3 Parts	Math Section	Reading Section	Writing Section

All Students	217,406	100.0%
		Pass Rate with Exemptions:	49.1%	56.9%	71.4%	77.2%

The initial pass rates per section indicate that more students successfully completed the writing test (69.3%) than successfully completed the reading test (61.4%) or the math test (42.0%). White students performed best in writing (77.4%) and reading (71.3%). Asian students performed best in math (62.0%). The relationships are similar when TASP-exempted students are combined with the students who took the TASP Test or an alternative test.

Retake Test Attempts

Section 51.306 of the Texas Education Code requires each public institution of higher education to provide developmental education to students unable to pass one or more sections of the TASP Test or an alternative test until those students can perform at college level, as demonstrated by re-taking and passing the relevant section(s) of the TASP Test. However, state law does not prohibit students from retaking the TASP Test at any time — before developmental education begins, during developmental education, or after completion of developmental course work. Therefore, the pass rates on the retake attempts cannot provide a direct measure of the effectiveness of developmental education. Nevertheless, these measures give some insight into how well students are able to complete the TASP requirements when retaking the sections of the TASP Test after failing the initial attempt. Note that these students may have been tested initially during or prior to the 1999-2000 academic year.

TABLE C: Retake TASP Pass Rates by Race/Ethnicity for 1999-2000

All Students	40.7% (43,029)	44.9% (36,051)	56.4% (30,587)	51.1% (25,663)

Total number of TASP retests in parenthesis.

Table C shows the TASP Test pass rates on retests for all three parts and for each test section by student race/ethnicity.

Of the 43,029 first-year students retesting in academic year 1999-2000, 40.7 percent completed their TASP obligation after retaking the appropriate sections of the exam.
The pass rates per section show that more students successfully completed the reading test (56.4%) than successfully completed the writing test (51.1%) or the math test (40.7%).

A similar pattern in pass rates was found among the students by race/ethnicity.

Alternative Criteria for Meeting TASP Requirements

Beginning in fall 1997, state law provided students not passing the TASP Test with an alternative criterion for meeting TASP requirements. Students may met the TASP obligation if they: 1) do not pass one or more sections of the initial test, 2) complete all required developmental education, 3) retake and do not pass the appropriate section(s) of the TASP Test, and 4) earn a grade of "B" or better in an appropriate course approved by the THECB. The number of students attempting to met the TASP obligation via a "B or better" course will affect the number of TASP retake attempts and pass rates (similar to the effect of exemptions via test scores on initial test attempts and pass rates).

Notes and Limitations

Not included in this report are scores not reported to the THECB because of unpaid test fees, scores for students who took the TASP Test but did not attend a public postsecondary institution in Texas during the academic year reported, and scores for students with incorrectly reported institutional codes. Also not included in this report are students who enrolled for the first time at an institution without testing or exemption via test scores, and students who enrolled at an institution during the academic year after previous enrollment at the same institution.

For the students who are included in the report, the pass rates are not disaggregated for first-time-in-college (FTIC) vs. transfer students. Also, the retake pass rates are not limited to attempts by students who completed required developmental education.

Extensive changes were made to the THECB's CBM002 Data Dictionary for the prior academic year (1998-1999). These changes may have contributed to data collection and reporting errors from institutions to the THECB. Suspected errors in institutional data reported in this document should be reported to the agency's Educational Data Center at (512) 427-6300 or the Center for College Readiness at (512) 427-6330.

For further information, contact the Coordinating Board's Center for College Readiness at (512) 427-6330.
